

A photograph of Bon-fire cast iron cookware in use. In the foreground, a black cast iron skillet sits on a metal grill over a fire of logs. The skillet contains sliced red and yellow bell peppers and red onions. To the left, a black cast iron tray holds several round, browned patties, possibly meat or fish, garnished with green herbs. In the background, a large black cast iron pot with a lid is also on the grill. A person's leg in blue jeans is partially visible in the upper left. The scene is set outdoors, likely at a campsite or picnic area.

The Bon-fire logo is a metallic, oval-shaped emblem with a brushed metal texture. The words "Bon-fire" are embossed in a clean, sans-serif font, with a registered trademark symbol (®) to the upper right of the word "fire". The logo is centered horizontally and sits on a white background. Above the logo is a horizontal bar composed of several colored squares in shades of blue, grey, and brown.
